Role of Animal Source Foods: ENAM Experience in Ghana

Grace S Marquis
McGill University
Staff from:
Women in Agricultural Development/MoFA
Ghana Health Services
Heifer International-Ghana
Freedom from Hunger-Ghana
Rural banks

Project manager
Esi Colecraft

Ghana PI
Owuraku Sakyi-Dawson

US PI
Grace Marquis

Administrative officer
Selasie Agamah, Gymfiwah Nikoi

Driver
Felix Boadu

Field supervisors / data management
Richard Tweneboah-Kodua, Aaron Christian

Temporary region-based data collection team
24 sponsored students
(Ghana, USA, Canada)

Regional managers

Participants

Data entry
Mawunyo Timbo, Gifty Nyarko

Data analysis assistants
William Quarmine, Clifford Marquaye

Felicia Kudomor
Winneba

Dinah Amoah
Techiman

Thomas Kambonga
Navrongo

Anna Lartey
Ben Ahunu
Emmanuel Canacoo

Anna Lartey
Ben Ahunu
Emmanuel Canacoo

Lorna Butler
Manju Reddy
Helen Jensen
Elizabeth Lonergan

Owuraku Sakyi-Dawson
Grace Marquis

Lorna Butler
Manju Reddy
Helen Jensen
Elizabeth Lonergan
ENAM Project
Enhancing child Nutrition through Animal source food Management

Enam = “animal-based products”  (Twi)
Problem model

- Income
- Marketing linkages
- Processing and storage
- Feeding skills and nutrition knowledge
- Households
- Food allocation
- ASF
- Availability
- Accessibility
- Utilization
- Number of extension field staff
- Cultural beliefs and attitudes
- Household size
- Caregiver empowerment
- Seasonality
- Pests and diseases
- Financial services
- Caregiver empowerment
ENAM Intervention

Microcredit loans & savings

Nutrition education

Entrepreneurship education

Weekly meeting

Support for IGA: Specialized training (Heifer)

Peer education (U Ghana)
Rural banks (FFH)
The ENAM Project was funded through the Global Livestock -CRSP funded in part by US-AID Grant No. PCE-G-00-98-00036-00; Women in Development, US-AID; and the Jim Ellis Graduate Mentorship Program. In addition, substantial support was provided by Iowa State University, the University of Ghana, and McGill University.